To Rule or to Lead?

After Boris Johnson gave his resignation to the Queen at Balmoral in early September, there was a brief period when there was no Prime Minister. Liz Truss's plane was delayed at Aberdeen airport, preventing her from receiving the invitation to form a new government. During that time Queen Elizabeth was briefly in charge, with her powers delegated to nobody. Nothing happened in that 40 minutes, but it is remarkable that at 96, and only a couple of days before her death, the Queen remained more than capable of ruling. She didn't take the opportunity to make any changes and duly handed over to the new Premier (though someone I spoke to not long after said they bet that the Queen had a few good ideas she might have liked to try...).

British Queens and Kings don't really rule any more. The last to try to do so was George III back in the late 18th Century. For 250 years royal powers have been delegated to Government ministers, and policy and politics decided democratically. Yet though our monarchs may not rule, they do still lead, as we saw dramatically again during the Pandemic. For then it was the Queen's messages that helped to hold us together – encouraging us to remember that 'We'll meet again' for example, and the Queen's actions as she handled the death of Prince Philip in such a dignified way. She was following in the footsteps of her parents during the Second World War, as they refused to leave London even at the height of the Blitz. These examples show how direct power is often over-estimated. In ceasing to rule in any obvious way, the British Monarchy has gained in its capacity to lead. Queen Elizabeth's character, her obvious dedication to service of others, her integrity and the humour she showed in not seeming to take herself too seriously (seen in her Jubilee cup of tea with Paddington Bear), have offered leadership not by ruling directly but by showing us how to be good human beings.

It's a hard act for King Charles to follow, though his accession speech showed clearly that he knows what it is to lead rather than rule, and in his energetic early travels round the UK he made a point of mentioning that as Prince of Wales for over 50 years his motto has been 'Ich dien' – I serve – not 'I rule'. For the pattern of servant leadership to follow, as the Queen herself often reminded us in her Christmas broadcasts, is the pattern of Jesus Christ, the King who never ruled from a throne and yet whose influence on human history is incalculably greater than anyone who ever has. His example of leadership by humility and service, sacrifice and love is the one that the Coronation Service will emphasise next year, when King Charles is crowned. In our own spheres of life there is much for us to learn from this contrast between rule and leadership. Perhaps the greatest gift our Queen has left us, and her successor, is that in the end it's not so much what you do or achieve that matters, but who you are and how you act – the person you are in relationship with others. That is what others remember, and is the legacy we leave above all.

Stephen and Jean Fletcher

It was announced on 4 September that Stephen Fletcher is to become Priest in Charge of All Saints' Gravelly Hill, St. Chad's Erdington and St. Mark's Stockland Green in Birmingham later in the Autumn and he and Jean will be leaving Tredington Rectory, probably in November. They say: We wish to express grateful thanks for all who offered wonderful support during their 4 years here in these parishes, not least during a turbulent time in the two benefices and especially in the period of the pandemic. Thankfully everyone is in safe hands with the arrival of Richard, and there will yet be time to say more. I'm sure that I don't need to say that Stephen and Jean have been extremely helpful in helping me to settle in for the first six months of my time here and I've been grateful for all their support. They have been valued by many across the churches in our group, I know, particularly for their pastoral support through difficult times in the past three years. We shall say more by way of Farewell in the November Magazine!

Nature Notes– October 2022

Autumn is a time of preparation for mammals fattening themselves up on seed, nuts and berries. Squirrels, voles and mice sote food for winter when it is scarce. How can we help our precious wildlife? By creating a home for wildlife in our gardens. In helping them, they will help us in Spring/Summer in our gardens. Let's think about creating some wildlife habitats in our garden for winter. No matter how large/small our garden is we can do something.

A small pile of logs ideal for minibeasts, wood mice, hedgehogs etc

A small pile of rock/stones ideal for minibeasts, slow worms, frogs, toads

A small pile of grass clippings, straw, leaves ideal for wood mice, shrews and minibeasts

A sheet of corrugated iron ideal for reptiles, amphibians, wood mice, voles

A compost heap providing additional winter habitats

Psalm 24:1 says “the Earth is the Lord's and everything in it.” He created it all and made everything. We can know that God exists through everything He has made

Newbold and Tredington CofE Primary School

We are pleased to have welcomed back the children and our new pupils are settling in well. The children have been excited to see the new layout of their classrooms and have begun to learn about their new topics. This year, we have added a key question to each topic that helps each class to answer a whole-school big what question about the world which is displayed on a board for everyone to share their learning. Children who wished to become part of our School Council were invited to create a poster to persuade others to vote for them. Our new members were elected including a class representative from Sapphire and Emerald and a secretary, treasurer, chair and vice chair were elected from Y5/6. We held a coffee morning to raise money for Macmillan Cancer Support at the Tredington site and invited families, friends and the community to buy a coffee and cake. We are continuing with the Co-op Food Share. Each Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday morning, the food can be found on a table outside the Tredington site entrance. Families and members of the community are invited to take an item or two from the table.

WHITCHURCH

Notes from a Small Church in a Field.

In about 1646 Sir William Dugdale visited St Mary's and saw a church very little changed since medieval times. Only a few years later, however, the church had been severely damaged, most likely by Oliver Cromwell's soldiers stationed in the district to block the road to Oxford at Talton. It was probably then that stained glass in the east window, described as 'unusually rich for a small country church', was smashed and stone canopies on either side of the window, mutilated. Only small pieces of medieval glazing survive in this window, in two faces of 'wodewose' or 'greenmen'. But in the south chancel window, the upper lights can be seen to have been patched together from fragments of medieval glass showing coats of arms that bear witness to the original Lords of Whitchurch Manor: Montforts, Belknaps, and Staffords. Our glass, then, remembers family histories -- but also an older history that belongs to folklore.

Church Flag

Plans by St. Mary's Church for a new flag have come to fruition this week. We have bought a high-quality flag of similar size to the old one. Since the old flag has served the late Queen well for her 70 years it will stay for her funeral and afterwards until the new flag has been dedicated. We shall then be able to celebrate a new King with a new flag! We will let the village know when this happens. Some villagers have already said that they would like to contribute to this. If you would like to do so our treasurer, Helen Patrick, will be delighted to accept cash, cheques or bank transfer (30 98 26 a/c 01704398) in person, in church or in a sealed envelope at the village shop. THANK YOU VERY MUCH INDEED

Ilmington C of E Primary School

Ilmington. The start of the term was marked by the death of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II and, despite being sad at her passing, we spent some time celebrating the life of our queen and looking forward to the reign of King Charles III. It is a time of new beginnings for the country and our school. We were recently considering how exciting it is to get new exercise books and doing our best to keep them tidy but when we make a mistake we can either be disappointed or learn from it and improve. We are therefore happily looking forward to many marvellous mistakes this year!

Want to Help Wildlife in Ilmington?

Ilmington 2020 Wildlife Group with Warwickshire Wildlife Trust and the support of Ilmington Parish Council, are planning to sow small areas of wildflowers in the following locations: the playing fields; -Upper Green and Dom's Plantation (on Campden Hill). We are hoping this will encourage as many pollinators as possible! Before we do any sowing, however, we need to clear the weeds in some areas of the playing field and Dom's plantation. Would you like to come and help? We're asking for volunteers, with appropriate tools if you have them, for an hour on one or both of these dates:

Saturday 15 October between 10.00 and 16.00

Sunday 16 October between 10.00 and 16.00

We're not sure what the weather will be like so we're going for two dates. We may use one or both. We want about 20 individuals in total. Children welcome with adult supervision. To put your name forward, or to know more, contact Liz Garton T: 682542 or E: lizgarton15@gmail.com. We will also be asking for volunteers to sow wildflower seeds on the cleared areas and part of Upper Green on Saturday/Sunday 12/13 November .

Ilmington Village & Horticultural Show

A good time was had by more than 2500 visitors to the Show which celebrated its 40th anniversary this year. There was a record turnover so there should be substantial amount available for local good causes. If you missed Judge the Poet's Anniversary poem at the show here's a chance to read it and take note:

Yet also, as we now celebrate 40 years with grateful, happy tears,

Let us think about what we need to do to create the next 40 years...

Yes, to keep our village heart beating, to make these dreams come true,

Our Show Team will need new willing helpers... now, could that be YOU?

If you would like to help contact the Chair Alan Wright on 682660 or alanwrightfireworks@gmail.com. Any group wishing to make a bid for support, please apply in writing to Alan (15 Cross Leys, Ilmington, CV36 4RT), by Wednesday 16 November stating what the money would be used for and a guide to the sums required so that requests can be considered.

A big thank you must go to Nigel Dunn who spoke on behalf of "Eyes and Ears" in Ilmington. Together, with two community police officers, our members were treated to a reassuring and informative discussion. Thank you to all who took part.
